

Brian C. Briggeman
Professor and
Director of the Arthur Capper Cooperative Center
Department of Agricultural Economics, Kansas State University

Biography

Brian C. Briggeman is a Professor and Director of the Arthur Capper Cooperative Center in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Kansas State University. His research interests include agricultural finance, agribusiness and cooperative management and macroeconomic implications for U.S. agriculture. He provides expert commentary on agricultural and rural related issues to local, national, and international audiences. Brian also teaches agricultural finance and cooperative management to undergraduates.

Prior to joining Kansas State University, Brian was an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, and a business analyst with Farm Credit Services of America, a financial cooperative. He holds a bachelor's degree in agribusiness from Kansas State University, an M.S. degree in agricultural economics from Texas A&M University and a Ph.D. degree in agricultural economics from Purdue University.

Brian and his wife, Sarah, live in Manhattan, Kansas with their two boys. He is originally from Iuka, Kansas where his parents and youngest brother own and operate the family farm.

Contact Information

Brian C. Briggeman
305C Waters Hall
Manhattan, KS 66506
Office: 785-532-2573
Fax: 785-532-6925
Email: bbrigg@ksu.edu